Gemeinsames Block-Seminar mit der Universität Zürich: «Territorial Conflicts and International Law – Current Challenges»

Für Studierende des Bachelor- und des Masterstudiums

Block-Seminar am 25. u. 26. April 2024

The concept of territory is at the core of modern international law, which provides a comprehensive set of rules for its acquisition and forfeiture. Yet universal respect for these rules remains elusive, as illustrated, most recently, by the Russian attack on Ukraine.

In our seminar, territorial disputes will serve to illustrate both the failings and the strengths of the international legal order. Applying a wide geographic and temporal scope, students will address specific territorial conflicts (possible topics may range from Ukraine, Israel, Taiwan, the South China Sea, Kosovo, Gibraltar, the Falklands, Nagorno-Karabakh, the Aegean Sea, Cyprus and the Chagos Archipelago to the Arctic and even to Outer Space). We will discuss how these conflicts reflect the development of international law, and analyse how international law may serve to contain, manage and overcome territorial disputes.
