6th Family Sciences Workshop for Early Stage Researchers

19th and 20th October 2023 – University of Basel, Switzerland

The workshop brings together early stage researchers from different disciplines whose work concerns the research field of “family” in a broader sense. The aim is to strengthen interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary aspects of family science research.

The “Centrum für Familienwissenschaften” (Center for Family Sciences) invites early stage researchers to participate in the above described workshop. It is ideal for master students, doctoral students and post-doctoral researchers whose current research involves issues related to the research field of “family” and who are working in disciplines such as law, sociology, psychology, child and youth psychiatry, gender studies, education, anthropology and economics.

During the workshop, participants will present (preliminary) results from their current research in an interdisciplinary setting. There will be many opportunities for discussions with other participants and experts from the “Centrum für Familienwissenschaften”.

Application

Early stage researchers interested in participating are invited to submit an abstract (approx. 1500 characters) and a short CV by 31 August 2023. Applications from research groups are also very welcome. The participants will be selected from the submitted abstracts.

The workshop’s languages are German and/or English. Participants should be capable of understanding presentations in both languages (no translation will be provided). Submissions in either language are very welcome. Applications in French are also possible.
